Children who require adoptive families often have specific needs due to their age, family background, culture, lifestyle background of the birth parent/s, medical conditions or medical history. In addition, for the intercountry adoption program, the meaning of special needs varies from country to country. Children in the Queensland adoption program may also come from a variety of ethnic and cultural backgrounds.

A child's background may include complex medical or social issues, for example, a child's father may be unknown, the child's mother may have received limited antenatal care, there may be a family history of psychiatric illness, parental drug dependence, there may be family members with developmental delays, a child may have experienced neglect, abuse (physical, sexual, emotional), institutional care, conception may be the result of incest or rape, a child may have a transmittable disease, physical or intellectual disability or shortened life expectancy. 10. Open adoption and the mailbox

Queensland's adoption laws support open adoption and the principles that are supportive of a child's best interest, throughout their life and a birth parents' preferences.

In many circumstances a child's birth parent/s may want their child to be placed with a person/s who agree to have some level of ongoing contact with the birth parent/s.

Contact may consist of indirect or direct contact, contact at agreed intervals or the exchange of identifying information or the exchange of non-identifying information through the mailbox service facilitated by Adoption Services.

If parties propose to have contact after an adoption order is made, the level of contact can be agreed by parties to the adoption and documented in an adoption plan.

An adoption plan is a written document entered into between a child's birth parent/s and prospective adoptive parent/adoptive parents and can be about anything relating to the adopted child's wellbeing or interests. It may include details of the degree of openness there will be in an adoption and whether the parties will communicate through the mailbox service or in another way. A plan is negotiated between parties, with the assistance of Adoption Services and is mandatory if parties plan to have in-person contact, the child is Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander descent, and if the child has been adopted from the child protection system.

Please refer to the department's website or contact Adoption Services for more information about open adoption and the mailbox service.

Please indicate the level of communication or contact you may consider:

Privacy Notice

In accordance with the Adoption Act 2009, the Department of Child Safety, Youth and Women is authorised to collect the information requested on this form to establish whether you are eligible to have your name/s entered in the Expression of Interest Register and to assess your suitability to be an adoptive parent. Further, Adoption Services may release any of the information in this form to an Adoption Contract Worker as part of your assessment of suitability to be an adoptive parent or an overseas adoption authority. The Department of Child Safety, Youth and Women may provide some or all of this information to the Queensland Police Service, Department of Transport and Main Roads or the Queensland Police Service or a police service in another jurisdiction, the Registrar, Registry of Births, Deaths and Marriages or relevant tribunal or court or other person as is permitted, authorised or required under the Act. All information obtained in the expression of interest and assessment process will be managed in accordance with the Information Privacy Principles described in the Information Privacy Act 2009.

PART C – Adult household members

In accordance with section 111 of the Adoption Act 2009, the assessment of a person/s suitability to be an adoptive parent will include an assessment of members of the person/s household. Section 121 of the Adoption Act 2009 further requires that in deciding whether a person/s is suitable to be adoptive parent/s, consideration must be given to the personal history of adult members of the person/s household to decide if an adult household member poses an unacceptable risk of harming a child adopted by the person/s.

Personal history means criminal history, domestic violence, traffic history and child protection information including all fines, charges, orders and convictions and in some circumstances, investigative information, irrespective of when this occurred. This may also include overseas or interstate history of persons who have resided outside of Queensland for 12 months or longer.

Information for person/s

The Adoption Act 2009 requires all adult members of your household to provide their written consent to being assessed, including personal history checks being undertaken, if you are selected for assessment. It is recommended that the adult household members give their consent at the time of submitting the expression of interest form to Adoption Services. The consent of adult household members can be obtained at a later stage if necessary, for example in circumstances where an adult subsequently joins your household. If adult household members refuse to give their written consent to being assessed, including the undertaking of personal history checks, your selection for assessment may be revoked and your name may be removed from the Expression of Interest Register.

Information for adult household members

The person/s completing this form is expressing interest in having their suitability to be adoptive parent/s assessed.

In signing this form you are giving written consent to being assessed and to your personal history being checked if the person/s is selected for assessment. If the person/s is selected for assessment, you will be asked to provide documents to prove your identity and supply any other information required to undertake checks.

If the person/s is selected for assessment, the assessment must include consideration of the personal history of adult household members. As you are an adult household member, your consent is required before your personal history can be checked.

Note: It is an offence under the Adoption Act 2009 for any person to knowingly provide false or misleading information.
